

*Center for Gifted Education
The College of William and Mary*

National Curriculum Network Conference

Celebrating 25 Years of Supporting High Ability Students

March 21-22, 2013

This annual conference offers sessions on curriculum, instruction, and assessment for high-ability learners. The focus audience includes administrators, gifted coordinators and teachers, as well as other professionals in gifted education.

This year's NCNC will be the kick-off for the 25th anniversary celebration. Special events and presentations will be included as part of the conference.

The Goals of the Conference are:

- To provide networking opportunities for practitioners related to curricular and instructional issues.
- To provide a forum for investigating issues related to new thinking in the field.
- To spotlight the CFGE curricula and materials.

This year's Conference will include over 30 breakout sessions, including presentations by nationally and internationally recognized speakers, as well as members of our National Advisory Board, who will share their perspectives and research regarding talent development, curriculum, instruction, and assessment for high-ability learners.
