HUMANITIES INSTITUTE SYMPOSIUM

IS AI JUSTICE POSSIBLE?

Any project that is committed to merging the goals of Arts practice and Humanities research with the productive potential of artificial intelligence must address the most fundamental question at the heart of such a project: is a just artificial intelligence possible? Given the long and elliptical moral arc of human history, can artificial intelligence help to bend it toward justice? This symposium will feature six speakers, a selection of artists, engineers and humanists who have contributed to the national conversation on AI, during two sessions. Our goal is to stimulate discussion among scholars across multiple fields that might result in a set of principles that could guide future research.

SEPTEMBER 22
10 AM–4:30 PM
OHIO UNION CARTOON ROOM
1739 N. HIGH ST.
COLUMBUS, OH 43210

For more information and to RSVP, go to:
https://go.osu.edu/ai_justice
This event is free and open to the public.
Parking available at Union South Garage, 1759 N High St.

THE OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY
HUMANITIES INSTITUTE